A TRADITION OF LIBERTY

In co-organizing this “Empires and Nations” conference with the Association for the Study of Nationalities, and holding it here “on campus” in Paris, Sciences Po marks its vocation as a university and research and documentation center engaged in applying the social sciences and humanities to attain better understanding of the international scope and implications of contemporary issues. The Empire of the Tsars and the Russians, the major work of Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, comes to mind. Leroy-Beaulieu, history professor here from 1880 to 1910 when this institution was called the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques, took regular trips to Russia over a period of many years to update his book and gather material for his courses.

Taking inspiration from this tradition, Sciences Po has encouraged and facilitated the international mobility of its students, faculty and researchers. The “Empires and Nations” conference held in Paris this July 2008—which follows on the “Citizenship and Nationality” conference held here in July 2001—is the result of Sciences Po doctoral students and academics’ ongoing participation in the ASN Conventions at Columbia University, New York.

Sciences Po receives a high number of foreign students, professors and researchers, and has made periods abroad and the study of two foreign languages compulsory for its students, the understanding being that the nation has never been a suitable framework in which to develop knowledge or train students. Imperialism, meanwhile, in any form, is an enemy of what was once called la république des lettres.

Sciences Po has therefore willingly assumed the efforts required to realize this conference, and I am very pleased to see it taking place here. Thanks to funding assistance from the Ile de France region, a considerable number of French embassies, and several research centers, we have been able to bring together 220 researchers from 26 different countries in 45 panels.

Let me extend a warm welcome to all participants and wish you a most productive gathering. ❖

AN INTERNATIONAL OUTLOOK

Conference Director

Like the “Citizens and Nationality” conference held at Sciences Po in 2001, this “Empires and Nations” conference is jointly organized by Sciences Po and the ASN. Multidisciplinarity, Comparative Studies, and varied observation scales are key features of both. The two conferences are also linked thematically. The indigenous peoples of the colonial empires were excluded from citizenship, while within the Soviet empire there was no political citizenship and the nations were oppressed.

The break-up of the Soviet system generated a new wave of nation construction following the one linked to decolonization—as well as new forms of empire and imperialism. But rather than study imperialism in the 21st century, this conference aims to produce instruments for improving understanding of political and social structures by covering a broad time span and applying a resolutely comparative approach, namely comparison of the continental empires.

Our call for papers generated a vast number of proposals. Unfortunately, we could only accept a quarter of them, providing matter for 45 panels. We do not aim to present an exhaustive panorama of situations or undertake a systematic study of categories, but rather to present research in progress. And we can be very pleased to see so many doctoral and post-doc students among the presenters.

Aid from our sponsors enabled us to invite 35 colleagues from Central and Eastern Europe and Asia; several others have come from these areas by their own means. 50 participants have come from North America and 100 from Western Europe.

This conference was made possible by the ties created in the last ten years between teachers and researchers at Sciences Po, EHESS and INALCO and numerous participants at the Columbia University ASN conventions. It is the result of regular collaboration between a Paris university and an international research association. But it could not have been realized without our sponsors, particularly the Ile de France region and a number of French embassies throughout the world.

Sciences Po teams, namely the Doctoral School, have played a crucial role. My warm thanks to Céline Ballereau for her administrative management. And for handling panel and overall organization we are all indebted to the current ASN president Dominique Arel; Alexandra Goujon, teacher at Sciences Po and the University of Dijon and Olivier Ferrando, a doctoral student at Sciences Po. ❖

FOREVER YOUNG

DOMINIQUE
AREL

*U of Ottawa,
Canada
ASN President*

The Association for the Study of Nationalities (ASN) is the largest international network of scholars engaged in the study of national, identity, and state-building issues in a vast geographical area whose core, historically, included several empires. ASN has been holding an Annual World Convention at Columbia University since 1996 and publishes the journals Nationalities Papers and Ethnopolitics.

“Empires and Nations” is the fifth European summer conference co-sponsored by ASN since 2001, and the second organized by Sciences Po, which launched the successful series of ASN summer academic events in July 2001 with a conference on “Citizenship and Nationality.” Summer conferences were also held in Forlì, Italy (2002), Warsaw (2004) and Belgrade (2006).

Even though ASN is 35 years old, it remains young in spirit and profile, as more than a third of its paper presenters, in New York or at summer conferences, are doctoral students, and another third among the recent generation of scholars. This reflects the enormous interest that the field of “national” – and empire – studies has continued to generate since the early 1990s.

Being hosted by such a prestigious and internationally-known institution as Sciences Po is great honor for ASN. D'autant plus qu'un si grand nombre de nous à l'ASN – à l'exécutif, au Comité du programme, et au Comité éditorial – parlons français!

Nationalities Papers

A publication of the Association for the Study of Nationalities

Editor:

Steve Sabol
University of North Carolina,
Charlotte, USA

Nationalities Papers is the only journal in the world which deals exclusively with all nationalities of the former USSR and national minorities in Eastern and Central European countries. The problems and importance of over 160 million people are treated within the disciplinary and methodological contexts of post-Soviet and Europe-Asia studies. Of central concern is the fate of the Balts, Ukrainians, Jews, Gypsies, Croats, Bosniaks, etc., and the peoples of Central Asia and the Caucasus.

Nationalities Papers is an international and multi-disciplinary journal with contributors and readers throughout North America, Western and Eastern Europe, the Far East, Japan and the People's Republic of China. Included in each issue are in-depth updates on the latest developments, some original documents, lists of the most recent publications from throughout the world and book reviews.
